

Kentucky People

LOUISVILLE Arena Dreams

Commerce Cabinet Office of Creative Services photo

Gov. Ernie Fletcher and Louisville Metro Mayor Jerry Abramson walk through downtown Louisville on Dec. 13, examining the potential site for a proposed downtown basketball arena. Much of Louisville's business community has come together in support of building the facility.

LEXINGTON 2010 World Equestrian Games

Commerce Cabinet Office of Creative Services photo

Gov. Ernie Fletcher, First Lady Glenna Fletcher and former Commerce Cabinet secretary Jim Host announce in December that the Kentucky Horse Park will host the 2010 World Equestrian Games.

LEXINGTON Katrina Relief

Staff photo

Ball Homes business manager Jim Parsons announces in December the company's plans to auction two new homes and raise more than $500,000 for the Bush-Clinton Katrina Fund. The fund provides relief and rebuilding resources to hurricane victims in Alabama, Louisiana and Mississippi. Ball Homes auctioned one home in Lexington, where the announcement was made, and one in Louisville.

LOUISVILLE Not-for-Profit of the Year

Junior Achievement's executive staff accepts the Business First Not-For-Profit Organization of the Year Award in December in Louisville. From left to right: Jackie Dant, senior vice president of operations; Debbie Dalton, vice president of development; and Debra Hoffer, Junior Achievement president.