

Kentucky People

LEXINGTON

Women's Business and Leadership Conference

Courtesy, Georgetown Community Hospital

Georgetown Community Hospital received the Top Business for Women Award presented by The Lane Report and Women Leading Kentucky at the annual Women's Business and Leadership Conference held May 10th in Lexington. Pictured are CEO Michael Clark and members of the management team.

LOUISVILLE

World Trade Day

Photo submitted

Bruce Traugher of the Louisville Mayor's Office presents Kentucky World Trade Center (KWTC) Chair & CEO and former Governor of Kentucky, Martha Layne Collins, with a proclamation honoring the 10th anniversary of the opening of the KWTC's Louisville office. She received the award at the 13th annual World Trade Day on June 2 at Louisville's Galt House Hotel.

LEXINGTON

UK President's Award for Diversity

University of Kentucky president Dr. Lee Todd (center) presented the Lexington Area Small Business Development Center (SBDC) with the President's Award for Diversity in April. The Lexington Area SBDC received the award in recognition of their commitment to elevating the university's mission to "nurture diversity of thought, culture, gender and ethnicity."

WASHINGTON, D.C.

Bracing for the Judge Debates

From left to right, Senate Majority Leader Bill Frist, judicial nominees Janice Rogers Brown and Priscilla Owen, and Senate Majority Whip Mitch McConnell discussed in May the upcoming Senate debate surrounding President George Bush's judicial nominations on Capitol Hill. Brown and Owen have since been confirmed to serve on the Court of Appeals.

LOUISVILLE

Angel Investors

The Kentucky Science and Technology Corporation, Sittes & Harblson and Capital Innovations recently presented a workshop in Louisville designed to assist investors. The conference featured John May, entrepreneur-in-residence at the Marion Ewing Kauffman Foundation in Kansas City and author of the book Every Business Needs an Angel. Pictured here are (l-r) Jim Seiffert, Sittes & Harblson; James Ramsey, president of the University of Louisville; and Marcla Schrimmer and John May of the Kaufman Foundation.